For the War College Here.

The War Department today made public a statement relative to the new army training system for young officers. In view of the large number of civilinar who have recently been appointed as officers, the Secretary of War has found it necessary to establish what he terms.

An important result of the combine of oil producers and refiners, noted in a report from this consulate dated May 10, 1902, (and Austrian combine) was a recent increase of 60.9 cents per 220.46 pounds in the price of petroleum, and now the refiners announce their intention to add still another crown per 160 kilograms to the price.

The refail cost of petroleum is already excessive in this country. As an illuminant, it is far more expensive than gas or electricity. The burden of the villages, the country districts, and the villages, the country districts and the villages and the village it necessary to establish what he terms, post schools.

which was prepared by Acting Adjutant General Carter, is as follows

"The last and not the least important of the War Department orders establishing the graeral scheme of education and training for officers of the army has just been published. This order establishes schools at every post in the army for officers, including all lieutenants and captains of less than ten years' service as commissioned officers.

"These schools take the place of the former methods of training in the officers schools and lyceums. It is not littended that officers shall be forever at-intended that officers shall be forever at-tending recitations; under the old sys-tem of lyceum instruction there was no such thing as graduation, but under th such thing as graduation, but after the new scheme prepared under the direct supervision of the Secretary of War, officers will be able generally within two gates to the Democratic State convention began to arrive this morning.
